INTERNATIONAL SCIENTIFIC TENDINOPATHY SYMPOSIUM

University Medical Center Groningen • September 27 - 29 • 2018

September 27 - 29, 2018 the 5th edition of the International Scientific Tendinopathy Symposium (ISTS) 2018 will take place at the University Medical Center Groningen (UMCG), Groningen, The Netherlands.

Based on the success of previous congresses in Umea, Vancouver, Oxford and Cape Town, which attracted a growing number of clinicians and researchers from scientific groups involved in tendon research from around the world, we feel honoured to be organising this Fifth Anniversary edition.

Just like in the past congresses, the upcoming conference will present information on both relevant basic tendon scientific research and clinical evidence-based methods to prevent and manage tendon-related problems using a multidisciplinary perspective.

Theme

The overarching theme 'Towards Healthy Tendon Ageing...' covers fundamental biological and clinical/preclinical research as well as applied research into the social and societal impact of tendinopathy. Invited keynote lecturers, discussions, free communications, poster presentations and workshops will be part of the programme.

Keynote speakers

Michele Abate, Michel Coppieters, Michael Kjær, Edwin Oei, Graham Riley have confirmed their presence as keynote speakers during the 3-day Symposium.

Abstract submission

Clinicians, researchers and other professionals are invited to submit their work for poster or oral presentations. Abstract submission will open on January 8, 2018.
